Over 16,500 police staff are set to lose their jobs because of unprecedented government cuts to police forces. The Winsor report - a review of police pay, and terms & conditions - published on 8 March 2011, is yet another attack. The Winsor report recommends:

- The abolition of Weekend working allowance
- Loss of TOIL (Time off in lieu) for public holidays.
- Cutting Sunday overtime working pay
- Reducing stand by allowances to £15
- Pay cuts in real terms by freezing increments

We the undersigned think that the Winsor report has failed to deliver its remit – the recommendations of the Winsor report will not maximise deployment to the frontline, doesn't recommend paying people for what they do, and are not fair and reasonable.

We think any discussion about future pay, terms and conditions should be negotiated through the joint collective bargaining structure of the Police Staff Council – and the value of police staff must be recognised.
