

CONSTRUCTION RALLY & LOBBY

Wednesday 28th March 2007

Amicus is leading the fight to ensure all construction workers are covered by UK National Agreements.

Amicus believes employers should abide by national agreements for directly employed staff, not employ migrant and agency workers on lesser terms and conditions.

We want to send a powerful message to government - that we insist on the highest possible standards for the construction industry and they can only be maintained through a directly employed workforce covered by trade union negotiated National Agreements.

Amicus members will be meeting with their MPs to demand that all publicly funded construction projects, such as the Olympic sites, use workers who are directly employed and covered by union negotiated national agreements.

Amicus for fair deal at work

Derek Simpson,
Amicus
General Secretary

Derek Simpson, Amicus General Secretary:

"The construction industry needs the support of the Government through the implementation of the Posted Workers Directive to protect against the exploitation of migrant workers and agency workers and the consequent attack on established industry terms and agreements.

"We are determined to achieve direct employment in construction in full compliance with the terms of our national agreements.

"We will not accept the exploitation of cheap labour in the UK or any attack on the terms and conditions of our members. We need to impress upon government the need for our National Agreements to be upheld, not just to ensure members pay and conditions of service but to ensure standards of health and safety so vital in construction."

Please contact your Regional Office to join the rally and for campaign materials including, posters, stickers and postcards.
