

New Build for Britain: Maximising UK manufacturing and skills

Wednesday 5th December 2007

Registration from 10.00-10.30

The event will run from 10.30-12.45pm followed by buffet lunch

Canada House, Trafalgar Square

This seminar will cover the potential for the UK manufacturing and skills base from nuclear new build.

Nuclear new build represents one of the most significant opportunities for British jobs and skills over the next decade. Unite is bringing together a senior audience from the nuclear industry, manufacturing employers, trade unions and Parliament for a seminar on maximising the opportunities in UK new nuclear build for UK manufacturing and skills. The seminar will be introduced by Mr James R. Wright, High Commissioner for Canada, and followed by a buffet lunch for delegates.

Speakers

- Rt Hon Adam Ingram MP, Vice Chair All Party Nuclear Group and MP for East Kilbride
- Paul Spence, Head of Strategy & Business Development, British Energy
- Robert Goodwill, MP for Scarborough and Whitby
- Ken Petrunik, President, CANDU Reactor Division, AECL
- Jean Llewellyn, National Skills Academy
- Jeremy Nicholson, EEF, the manufacturers organisation
- Dougie Rooney, National Officer, Unite Amicus Section (Chair)

Registration

This seminar is free but attendees will need to register as places are limited.

To register, please email manufacturing@fleishmaneuropa.com

This seminar is kindly hosted by the Canadian High Commission and supported by Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd

Government of Canada
High Commission of Canada

Gouvernement du Canada
Haut-commissariat du Canada

