

Influencing the Future

Speech and Language Therapists and Assistants along with other health workers face the real threat of fragmentation of NHS services and the increased use of the private sector to deliver public services for private profit.

More than ever you need an organisation that can campaign to keep those services and jobs within in the NHS in the best interests of both patients and staff.

With 100,000 members in health and 6000 members in speech and language therapy, Unite is the union for Speech and Language Therapists and Assistants and talks on a daily basis to key decision makers in the NHS and government.

Unite's accredited workplace representatives and full time officials will provide you with representation at a local level to maintain and develop:

- Working practices
- Terms and conditions
- Staffing levels
- Career structure
- Professional leadership
- Equal pay for work of equal value

Nationally elected representatives, from all areas within Speech and Language Therapy, advise and guide the union on the particular concerns of the profession and make submissions on your behalf to influence national consultations such as the Bercow Review.

Being part of Unite means that the voice of Speech and Language Therapists and Assistants can be heard in national negotiations on pay and conditions and in the campaigns to keep the NHS within the public sector.

It also provides a strong voice in representing your interests with the Health Professionals Council and the Royal College of Speech and Language Therapists.

Unite offers professional liability insurance cover for Speech and Language Therapists against claims of up to £3 million and legal defence costs up to £250,000.

Together we have a voice!
