

Unite needs you!

Learning and skills are more important now than ever. In order that Unite the Union can achieve the aim of continually advancing members' learning and training interests in the workplace, we need to ensure that we have union learning representatives (ULRs) at every workplace site. In Unite, members elect ULRs to act on their behalf and ensure their learning issues are voiced and addressed at work. ULRs can deal with learning and training issues either collectively or confidentially. Full training and support is given to anyone who wishes to undertake this challenging but rewarding role. You will be the face of Unite in your workplace!

ARE YOU THIS PERSON?

If you are interested in becoming a learning representative or want more information please contact your regional learning organiser at your main regional office or Learning Development Coordinator - Ian Scott on 07768 931306 or on ian.scott@unitetheunion.com
