Dear Colleague

Unite the Union is proud of its strong links with the Labour Party. The Labour Party was created over 100 years ago to promote the values and aspirations of trade union members. 100 years on and we recognise the importance of that well-built relationship, working together to tackle low pay, unfairness in the workplace and improving the lives of everyone.

It is my belief as Joint General Secretary of Unite that involvement with the Labour Party is the only way to secure better rights for our members. Working with Labour secured the Warwick agreement, which ensures that workers will get paid for working bank holidays – maternity pay has risen to nine months and paid paternity leave to two weeks. As a Labour Party member you will have a say in the policy making process of the Labour Party, inputting to the next manifesto that Labour will campaign to be elected on.

As part of the Labour Party you can help shape the policies that are developed for the next manifesto, sharing your ideas and your family's hopes and concerns. As a trade unionist your ideas are vital. The leader and deputy leader of the Labour Party are elected by ordinary members. In addition, Labour Party members have a direct say in the selection of their local Labour MP and councillors. You could also choose to stand as a Labour Party Candidate yourself.

Political decisions impact on Amicus members on a daily basis, whether they be on pensions, employment policy, health and safety, schools or the NHS. There has never been a more important time for Unite members to join the Party.

If you join the Labour Party today you can help shape the policies of a fourth term Labour Government, ensuring that a future Labour Government recognises and acts positively on the issues that really matter to you. Now is the time to join up and join in with the future of the Labour Party and the future of Britain.
